SEFIRAT HA'OMER (cont'd) - Though the "Sefirah" commemorates a joyous occasion, namely the bringing of crops and anticipation of receiving the Torah, it has come to be a sad time. During these seven weeks from Pesach to Shavuot, in the 2nd century c.e., the Romans oppressed Judea and killed thousands of Jews. Also, during this time, 24,000 students of Rabbi Akiva died since they spoke Lashon HaRah — slander — against one another. Jewish Law requires that we observe 33 days of simulated mourning; not taking haircuts, attending weddings or musical events. There are two ways to count these 33 days. Some people count from the second night of Pesach (the first day of the Omer) until Lag B'Omer, the 33rd of the Omer. Some count from the first day of Iyar until three days before Shavuot, days set aside for preparing for the receiving of the Torah.

MILAH IVRIT: Hebrew word for FIVE - The Hebrew word is CHA-MAISH. Similarly CHA-MOSH means "to divide into five parts." A CHU-MASH refers to the Book containing the five Books of the Torah.

CHAPTER 82: THE WARS OF THE STATE OF ISRAEL "Make ready buckler and shield and draw near to battle" (Jer. 46.3).

(17) DIRTY HANDS AND

A CLEAN SPIRIT - Even when his hands are sullied with the blood of his enemies whom he killed before they could kill him, the Jewish soldier is obliged to preserve his purity of soul. When seeing corpses scattered over the ground, he is not to disregard their worth as human beings who, after all were created in the image of God, and he should have compassion on every Jew and share in his fellow's sufferings. This is what R. Yechezkel Levenstein, spiritual mentor of the Ponevezh Yeshivah, had to say during the Six Day War: "True joy lies in the preservation of the lives of our fighting brothers-in-arms rather than in the victory over enemies. This is what Scripture states (Deut. 23.15): "For the Lord your God walks in the midst of your camp, to deliver you, and to give up your enemies before you. 'To deliver you' is stated at first (i.e. as being of prime importance), and next, as secondary, 'and to give up your enemies before you.' Jewish hearts are elated. Blessed be Hashen for having given us success in defeating the enemies of the people of Israel, in subduing and crushing them. Yet we must realize that concomitant with victory there were other consequences. Thousands were severely wounded, and they still groan under the burden of their suffering. thousand Jewish Several families are plunged into sadness at their loved ones being disabled. How much has this affected us? How deeply do we feel their suffering? We have to feel the pain of our brothers more than the defeat of our enemies. Is it not a 'great rule of the Torah' to love one's neighbor as oneself? One should feel the pain of his fellow man as if it were his own." Reprinted from SHEMA

Not A Jewish Problem

It is our contention that the whole Jewish approach to the problem of Arab oil money seeking to oust Jews from top positions in American industry is in error.

As stated here previously, our position is that this repository of so much current Jewish history is not a Jewish problem, but a non-Jewish one and is no more. Who like him could recite with what is at stake is not what happens to Jews but what such authenticity what took place either in happens to the American system.

This is a simple principle to get across. It asserts emphatically that what happens to Jewish businessmen is not the issue, and certainly not the principal con-hours after the tragic accident, and still do sideration.

This approach also robs the Arabs of their ammunition. For it puts them in the unenviable position phoned us from New York to inquire when of demanding that we change our way of life, our we would be getting to the New York office system of free enterprise, and the fundamental prin- and we set a tentative luncheon date for this ciples of American democracy.

The other alternatives place the Jewish group in the late Ben Prince we made our first trip a defensive position from which we can fight only a

We are practically suggesting a hands off position for the Jewish community. Whenever the question is discussed in public, whoever presents the Jewish view should state that Jews while concerned cannot take that the three of us scouted through the Israel the matter into their hands because in essence this of the day when a banana was rationed and is not a Jewish issue.

We are not suggesting what was the old shah shah position where Jews sought to sweep under the rug after the 1948 surprise victory over the Arabs, any attacks on the Jewish group as if this was a and the trip was memorable, but this was before solution. We are recommending how the battle should the day of the tourist guides, so that M.Z. be fought.

This means alerting the non-Jewish public to this view - that America as we know it cannot give in to any attempts to make commerce and industry domiciled in New York, he held down a desk Judenrein.

If this view predominates, then the business man every visit of ours, we had lunch with him who succumbs to the Arab inducements will become and greeted each other warmly as do two people personna non grata, not of course only to the Jews, but to his non-Jewish peers, for he is risking the destruction of America for his private gain.

The shock of the death of M. Z. Frank has still at this late writing not worn off. That Czarist Russia, in the early days of American Zionism and in the days in which the Jewish state was aborning and since.

We were called early Monday, only a few not know the details. M. Z. had just arrived in the United States the previous week for a visit with his family and old friends, and past Wednesday.

Our mind went back to 1952 when with to Israel. M.Z., at that time, already was living in Israel on one of his occasional stays there for period of a year or so, and was, if our memory serves us correctly, in the office of Mayor Abba Hushi, of Haifa, as head of his public relations department. It was with M.Z. when what went for bread at that time was unedible -- like straw.

But it was a glorious people, still heady provided the background and the introductions that today one gets on a Mission or in travelling with a tour of one kind or another.

In the past years, whenever M.Z. was in our New York office so that on practically involved for almost 30 years in a common enterprise. He was the scholar, the analyst, the man with the background and in a sense our mentor. He was in fact a living history, and the opportunity to put him down in this way for posterity!

So it is his books, and his column in The P-O which remain the monument to him, not to mention we who had the privilege of learning

Mrs. Frank we know of course also. She up until this last time, could never really make his beloved Israel his true home.

A criticism here of the way in which TV personalities interviewing Jewish leaders, usually Israelis, with such discourtesy was echoed last week by the outgoing president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors. Howard H. Hays, told his colleagues:

"Perhaps I'm naive, but I hope there is something we can do about the occasionally unfortunate manner and demeanor of some of our reporters at (televised) press conferences.

From our bailiwick, our complaint is the way the Arabs who appear on TV are treated with kid gloves, while the Jewish leaders are gone after as if the reporters were the pack of dogs and the person being interviewed is the fox.

Barbara Walters was the most conspicuous in this respect, and she is being honored by the American Jewish Committee, which is fine if only Elmer Winters will inject in introducing the occasion that she could be a little less selfhating when she interviews Jews.

In this connection, it did our heart good to see the way in which Abba Eban — he is rising in our estimation - cut off Peter Jennings and even told the ABC reporter to let him finish at several points in an interview just this past week.

A model of the way in which interviews should be conducted was the appearance of Moshe Dayan, also this past week, on Public Service TV with Leonard Boas in the slot.

"WE CAN'T ESTIMATE how many of our readers know much about the Likud Party, the second largest in the Israel Parliament, whose leader is Menahem Begin. But we can rest assured that the 100 or so women who signed a Likud petition urging that Israel not give up one inch of the Arab territory she presently occupies, do not know that they are supporting a party and a position opposed to the present Coalition Alignment which rules

It is an insight into the lack of knowledge of most American Jews about the most common facts of Israeli life. We suppose that is in a way fortunate, for if too much were known perhaps there wouldn't be that solid and almost unquestioning support from every sector of the American Jewish community.

In fact so many Indianapolis women signed the several petitions carried by Joyce Levi, daughter of Dr. Leon Levi, one of that city's (Continued on next page)

Banks Double Profits Despite Credit Freeze

By SAMSON KRUPNICK

Yearend financial reports are coming through more promptly than in previous years revealing many surprises most of them quite pleasant. However, it came as no great revelation that the banks had enjoyed a record year in both volume of business and in profits despite the Government-imposed credit freeze.

The banking business in Israel has always been a very profitable one, typical of development, credit-hungry, countries Krupnick generally. Yet, for the banks to report more than double the previous year's net income under pressure conditions seems quite an unusual achievement. THE "BIG FOUR" indeed showed such profits and expanded their activities as well. Bank Leumi indicated an 85 per cent advance over 1973. Bank Hapoalim reported profits more than double those of 1973 after taxes. The Israel Discount Bank's net profit in 1974 after taxes was a whopping 87 per cent over 1973 while the United Mizrahi Bank recorded an increase of over 100 per cent in net profits over 1973.

In addition to these fantastic profits each of these banks disclosed huge growths in deposits and in total balance-sheet assets.

The most sensational of these increases was reported by Bank Hapoalim, Israel's second largest bank — an 81 per cent jump in total assets to IL 27 billion in 1974, accounted for principally by an 85 per cent growth in deposits by the public and financial institutions abroad. The bank paid a 15 per cent cash dividend plus a 30 per cent share bonus distribution.

THE SAME GENERAL PATTERN was typical of the other three major banks. Israel Discount Bank appeared the most generous in dividend distributions, paying two giant interim dividends of 24 per cent and 50 per cent during 1974. Its balance-sheet assets increased by 63 per cent to over IL 16 billion as its deposits rose by over 50 per cent.

A further sign of a good year's business were the highly profitable reports of the investment companies, subsidiaries of the major banks. Their portfolios are usually diversified and represent a fair cross-section of Israel's industry and finance. The biggest of these companies, Bank Leumi Investment Company, for example, paid a total of 16 per cent in cash dividends, plus a share bonus of 30 per cent. The smallest of the "Big Four" investment companies, the Investment Company of United Mizrahi Bank, showed an increase in operating profit after taxes of over 150 per cent with an accompanying increase in cash dividends of from 12 per cent in 1973 to 25 per cent in 1974 and in stock dividends of from 4 per cent in 1973 to 10 per cent in 1974.

AN IMPORTANT SOURCE of the income of both the banks and of their investment companies was their major investment in "linked" debentures (to the cost of living index) that soared during the year along with the skyrocketing inflation and the climb in the cost of living index. While these profits could be termed in a sense "fool's gold" since they represent but a pacekeeping with the true value of the pound, nevertheless the ability of these financial institutions to anticipate the inflationary trends is the measure of their capacity for preserving their assets and their profitable utilization in the light of rapidly changing financial conditions. The investment companies also benefited handsomely from their interests in industrial and construction enterprises so that in combination with their linkage investments each reported a banner year distributing dividends of 25 per cent or more in cash and

However, these results give rise to serious speculation as to whether the concerted efforts by the Finance Ministry during 1973-74 to institute greater austerity on the home front are bearing proper fruit. A cardinal portion of the program was the restriction of credit and the tight control of excess purchasing power. It would appear that the banks and their investment companies had no real credit problems investing their funds rather than loaning them, thus reaping higher benefits than ever before. In the light of the fact that foreign investments in industry in Israel has dropped drastically because of greatly reduced aliyah and tourism and because of the world recession, it should behoove Government to direct more credit to industry through the banks and through their investment companies at least until such time as foreign investment again reaches the level required for sound development.

Under these circumstances, a dividend distribution of 74 per cent made by the Israel Discount Bank and to a lesser degree by the other banks, is not only inflationary but counterproductive. The huge windfall profits by the banks and their investment companies should properly be reinvested in or loaned to industry. An austerity period is not the time for huge profits nor for bonanza dividends.

TORAH THOUGHT

By Z. A. Hilsenrad

The statute of the Parah Adumah, the Red Heifer, is beyond human understanding. Its purpose was to render ritually clean those who had become ritually unclean through contact with a corpse.

RED HEIFER, blemished, upon which no yoke had ever been placed, was slain, then burned. Its ashes were dissolved in water and sprinkled on those who had become defiled through contact with the dead. While it purified the ritually unclean, it defiled to do with its preparation.

Why? We do not know. Even Solomon, the wisest of all, baffled him.

This is the Law of the Torah, the Torah . . . a Torah which broader than the ocean, deeper than the abyss. Were a person to live a thousand years Younin was also asked, by and devote all his time and efforts to delving into it, he would not learn or understand any more that he needs to know in order to observe. #### THE LOX BOX

Shortage Is Explained

By MARTIN MOSKOVITZ

Lennie from the deli had some very disturbing news for me the other day. "There might be a very serious shortage of lox in this country soon," he whispered in my ear.

Considering the price of lox today, I doubt if many people will ever be aware of the shortage when it comes.

ALSO according to Lennie, the affluent Japanese have discovered lox and they're paying top dollar for this delicacy. And after all, there are just so many salmon swimming around in the ocean.

And to make matters even worse, Russian fishing fleets are anchored just out-Moskovitz side the U.S. 12-mile fishing limit and are gobbling up everything that swims.

LENNIE didn't mention this, but personally, I think it's a deliberate Russian attempt to get even with American Jews by taking away their lox and gefilte fish.

I have the strangest feeling that all of those do-it-yourself books that tell you how to raise flourishing house plants are for the birds. You cannot become a horticulturalist by just reading such a volume. At last count, I have an even dozen of that kind of book. I have 11, and then I saw one called, "I Never Met a House Plant I Didn't Like." I am a pushover for a catchy title, so I bought it.

I cannot claim that I read it as thoroughly as a Yeshiva Bocher studies the Talmud, but I looked it over. What did I learn from it? — Very little: "Plants are like people; each one is unique." Frankly, I knew that already. I'd still like to know what I can do about several house plants I have.
